Описание оценочных средств (показатели и критерии оценивания, шкалы оценивания) представлено в приложении к основной профессиональной образовательной программе «Каталог оценочных средств текущего контроля и промежуточной аттестации».

Процедуры оценивания знаний, умений, навыков и (или) опыта деятельности приводятся в соответствующих методических материалах и локальных нормативных актах Университета.

Для оценивания учебных достижений студентов в Университете действует балльно-рейтинговая система.

Если оценка, соответствующая набранной в семестре сумме рейтинговых баллов, удовлетворяет студента, то она является итоговой оценкой по дисциплине при проведении промежуточной аттестации в форме экзамена/зачета с оценкой/зачета.

Условием сдачи экзамена/зачета с оценкой/зачета с целью повышения итоговой оценки по дисциплине является сдача студентом экзамена, за который он получает экзаменационные баллы без учета баллов, полученных за текущий контроль:

Шкала оценивания учебных достижений по дисциплине, завершающейся зачетом без оценки

Баллы по дисциплине	60 и менее		61-73		74-90		91-100

St. Petersburg

The beautiful city of St. Petersburg is built on water, which gives a magical and romantic atmosphere.

Poets and writers often call it ‘the Northern Venice’, ‘the Pearl of the Baltics’. The city was born and grew up on 42 islands. Now they are linked by 363 bridges. It stretches along the Neva River.

It was the Tsar’s fancy to build a city on a swampy land at the mouth of the Neva river. Peter 1 believed that the new city would provide a port for trade through the Baltic sea giving Russia a “window on Europe”.

In May, 1703 tsar Peter 1 founded a fortress on a small island called Zayachy. The fortress was named after Saint Peter and it gave its name to the future northern capital of Russia.

At the beginning of its construction the city charged everyone an obligatory tribute. Those who arrived by carriage were to bring three stones, and those who came by river or sea-ten stones.

Many famous European and Russian masters did their best work while constructing the city. Palaces, cathedrals, buildings of rare beauty rose along straight avenues and streets, squares and parks.

The first monumental ensemble of the city, Peter and Paul fortress, attracts lots of tourists. The Cathedral of Peter and Paul fortress built by architect Tresini in 1712-1733 became the necropolis of Russian tsars.

St. Petersburg displays a remarkable richness of architecture. Its Winter Palace, the Kazan and St. Isaac’s Cathedrals, Vorontsov and Strogonov Palaces are world famous.

Museums are the city’s pride. One of the most famous museums, the State Hermitage, is situated here. Its collection boasts of tsars’ treasures, works of world-known artists, and paintings from private galleries of Yusouповs, Strogonovs, Sheremetevs, Shuvalovs and others. Some 2,5 million masterpieces of various epochs, countries and nations are located in more than one thousand halls. It is one of the largest museums in Europe.

St. Petersburg has played a vital role in Russian history. It was the scene of the February and October Revolutions in 1917 and was fiercely defended during World War II. It was renamed three times – Petrograd, Leningrad and again, St. Petersburg. Now, the city plays an important role in Russian economy, culture and international cooperation.

Great Federico Felini, who once visited St. Petersburg said, ”I’m happy that I was born in Italy and worked in Rome, but , probably, I would be twice happy if fate would let me have a nook in Russia, in St. Petersburg. I fell in love with this city. Somehow, I understand it”. If you have a chance to visit this great city, you’ll fall in love with it, too.

How not to die before you get old

Chiako is active and healthy. She gets up at 7.00 a.m. every day and goes for a brisk walk. Three times a week she plays gate-ball – a popular national sport – with her friends. There is nothing unusual about this, except that Chiako is 102 years old. She is not alone – there are hundreds of centenarians who lead healthy lives like this in Okinawa.

Okinawa is a group of Japanese islands between Japan and Taiwan. Near a beach, there is a large stone with the following proverb engraved on it: "At 70 you are still a child; at 80 you are just a youth; and at 90, if the ancestors invite you into heaven, ask them to wait until you are 100, and then you might consider it.

Okinawans manage to stay slim in old age by eating a low-calorie diet which consists of three quarters plant food and one quarter animal food. They eat seven servings of fruit and vegetables every day and they stop eating when they are 80% full. They also keep physically active the natural way by dancing, doing martial arts, walking and gardening. In other words, they do the things they enjoy.

Okinawans have developed a stress-resistant personality. Nobody is in a hurry, timetables are non-existent, and there is always tomorrow. Hundreds of people, both young and old, go to the beach every day to watch the spectacular sunsets. In Okinawa there is always time to watch the sun set.

As well as large extended families, Okinawans have strong networks of friends. When someone is ill and doesn't come to work, a neighbour will always knock on their door to find out how they are.

There's no magic pill. If you keep fit, if you have good friends, a healthy diet and a stress-free lifestyle, you will live longer. It's as simple as that!

STRESSFUL LIFE

A successful job, lots of money, a beautiful flat in the city. Most of us dream of these things but for Emily and Simon of Atlanta, Georgia, all this was not enough. They had everything, but they weren't happy living in the city. They wanted to change their lifestyle so they gave up their jobs as computer consultants, left their house and bought some land in the Cumberland Mountains. Life is very different. There's no electricity, no shower for washing, no supermarket to buy food, but the husband and wife team love it and they have big plans. So what are they going to do?

'First we're going to build a house. After that we're going to have lots of vegetables in the garden to eat.' And are they going to work in the future?

'We're going to earn money by offering holidays to business people who need to escape the stress of the city, but this time we aren't going to get stressed.'

10 habits of all successful people

Success means different things to different people. For some, success might be financial achievements, becoming a millionaire for example. For some it might mean accolades. For sportmen it may mean trophies, championships or medals. For some, being successful might simply mean achieving a state of wellness, health or happiness. Whatever it means to you, take note of these 10 habits of all successful people. They apply to any area, and any meaning of success.

Number 1

They set goals. You've probably never met a successful person who doesn't set goals, because the chances of you finding what you want without a clear target to move toward are right around zero. If you don't know where you are going, you will end up some place you didn't plan to be. Setting goals should be the number one priority for anyone seeking success. Define exactly what it is you want - your end goal. Break down exactly what is required to get there - mini goals. Make sure your "Why"... your reason for doing what you must do is strong, so when you hit those roadblocks, when things go wrong as they always do, you have the strength and purpose to keep going.

Number 2

They take responsibility for their life. Another key attribute of all successful people is they take complete responsibility for the success and the failures in their life. Unlike the majority, they never play the victim role. If something doesn't work out, they don't blame others, they learn the lesson, learn one more way not to do something, and move on quickly. Your energy is always best spent in the present, and planning for the future. Your thought process should always be: "How can I make this work?" and "What can I learn from this?" Never living in the past or making excuses as to why you aren't where you should be. Remember everyone suffers setbacks, everyone has the opportunity to either blame others & circumstances, or to focus on moving on and creating a better future. Regardless of what has happened you decide what you do now.

Number 3

They have great self- discipline. Discipline is a strong trait of all successful people, and it is one that can be developed with consistent use. Anyone that works from home or unsupervised knows the importance of self- discipline. When you are alone will you choose to go through social media, watch cat video on you tube, or do something that will be beneficial for your future? It is much easier to have discipline if you have clear goals and a meaningful purpose, something that is much more important than meaningless distractions.

Number 4

They are obsessed with self- development. You can't really claim to be successful if you have given up working on yourself. This doesn't mean you are never satisfied just that you know it is human nature to want to grow and learn new things. Be open to learn new things and develop your mind, through mentors, audio books and reading. The more you learn the more you will earn, financially and spiritually.

Number 5

They read a lot! Reading is a common past time of many highly successful people. The majority these days can't sit alone for 2 minutes without becoming "bored", picking up their phone to go on social media, probably to post about how bored they are. Successful people however, are almost always happy to be alone, to be alone in quiet, to have the opportunity read or listen to something that will benefit their mind, and their future. If you are not a reader, try audio books. You can play them in your car, in the gym, or while you shower, and use time that might normally be wasted to gain new skills, new strengths.

Number 6

They manage their time well. Time management is essential to success. Unsuccessful people usually get stressed and overwhelmed when there are too many tasks on their to-do list. Successful people are rarely fazed, they prioritize the big-payoff and most rewarding tasks first, and leave the insignificant ones to last, knowing it matters most to do the most valuable tasks first. Successful people plan in advance, days, weeks, months ahead, knowing clearly what needs to be done to complete their jobs and reach their goals.

Number 7

They take risks. If you don't buy a ticket, you can't win the raffle. If you don't take big risks you can't achieve big rewards. Successful people know that there will be times they will need to take risks in order to get where they need to go. Often most people won't take those same risks for fear of failure however the greater failure to successful people would be that of regret. Risk going for the life you want, or guarantee living with one you don't want.

Number 8

They keep going when they suffer failure and setbacks. We all suffer setbacks. Every single person that attempts to live their dream life will suffer through failure many of them might even lose everything. Most quit, the successful never quit. They keep going, knowing their greatest character is formed in adversity. Knowing their success story is being written in every moment, and it will be especially good now they have a comeback story.

Number 9

They find a way to win. Successful people find a way. Period. Whatever life throws their way, they deal with it, dodge it, smash through it, whatever is required they find a way to win.

It's the whatever it takes mentality. It's the confidence in knowing whatever happens, I will give my all and leave nothing on the table. I will find a way to win!

Number 10

They do what they love. If you are not doing what you love, you can't really claim yourself a success. Spending the majority of your working hours, also known as the majority of your life doing things you hate for money, is not successful living. It's torture to the soul. If you need to suffer doing something you don't like to get a life you love, do that but do not lose sight of exactly that: your ultimate purpose. Find your life purpose. Think of all the things you love to do more than anything in the world, then brainstorm how you can turn those passions into profit, doing what you love every day. Even if you are taking a pay cut it will be worth it. Do what you love every day, and you will never work a day in your life.

"Successful people do what unsuccessful people are not willing to do. Don't wish it were easier; wish you were better."

Jim Rohn

"Success is not final. Failure is not fatal. It is the courage to continue that counts."

Winston Churchill

"Just remember: you can't climb the ladder of success with your hands in your pockets."

Arnold Schwarzenegger

FROM THE HISTORY OF BRITISH FASHION

Now let's speak about the origin of some clothes names. Do you know any pieces of clothing whose names come from the English language?

Jeans

Jeans are the most popular clothes of the 20th century. These are trousers made of very strong cotton cloth with back patch pockets with a double stitch. They are very popular in the whole world both with adults and children. This name comes from the English corruption of the name of the Italian city of Genoa. In the middle ages very strong cotton cloth for sails was made in that city. In the middle of the 19th century an American manufacturer, Levi Strauss, bought a lot of such cloth and went to the west of the USA. He wanted to sell it to cowboys and gold diggers for tents. But tents were not needed them and Levi Strauss decided to sew strong, comfortable and practical trousers. They were a great success and then jeans have been very popular with people of different ages all over the world. They are comfortable and practical for every day.

You can do everything you like – climb trees and mountains, run and jump, play different games, lie on the ground near the fire, go to the institute. They keep you warm. Wear jeans and jacket and you'll look very smart and have no problems.

A blazer

This name comes from the English verb "to blaze" (светиться). It is a long jacket of classical design with patch pockets. The buttons are of metal and blazing. Blazers appeared in England first where some members of different clubs wished to differ from the members of other clubs. So members of various English clubs began to wear jackets of special design, they had their own colour, buttons and stripes. Nowadays sportsmen or umpires in Russia wear blazers for special occasion.

A jumper, a sweater, a pullover

Nobody knows all the differences between them but there are some. The word "jumper" comes from the English verb "to jump" (прыгать). At first it was an item of sport wear and looked like a knitted jacket with a short fastening at the throat.

A knitted jacket without any fastening with a little cut was called "pullover" from the English word "to pull" (тянуть вверх), that means to take something off or put on over the head.

A sweater is a warm knitted jacket without a fastening and a cut with a high collar. This name comes from the English verb "to sweat" (потеть). That shows that a sweater is a very warm piece of clothing.

A mackintosh

It is a kind of coat or raincoat of loose-fitting design. It is usually made of waterproof material. This piece of clothing got its name from the Scottish chemist Charles Mackintosh who invented waterproofing. Nowadays coats or raincoats of loose-fitting design are very popular with so-called "new Russians".

A mini-skirt

It is very light. It is very short. You wouldn't be hot in a mini- skirt.

It is very comfortable. Besides, you look very beautiful in it.

Nowadays people wear these items of clothing and enjoy them very much.

The day that changed my life

When I saw Jim on the news, I didn't recognise him to begin with. He looked really thin and his hair was falling out. When I heard the reporter say his name, though, I looked a bit more closely and then I realised it was him. I just burst out crying. I was really surprised, because we never really friends when we were at school together. He came from quite a poor family and his dad had been in prison. Maybe it was just because he was looking for attention, but I remember that he could be a bit loud sometimes in class and we were just very different, I suppose. But to see him there, looking so lost and alone, begging on the street! Well, it was just so upsetting. It broke my heart, it really did!

The next thing I knew, I was ringing the TV station which had run the report. I don't know why - I just it on impulse. Anyway, they gave the address of a hostel for homeless people. I went down there the following day and it was really depressing. It was filthy and the whole place stank! Half the people there were either drunk or mad - or both! One of the workers showed me to where Jim was sleeping. What amazed me was that he recognised me at once and said, 'Oh, Andrea. It's you.' His voice sounded so sad, but, at the same time - and I can't explain this very well - it was like I could feel something pulling us together. I felt like it was destiny.

I'd like to say that things have been easy for us since then and that love has run its true course, but life doesn't work like that, does it? What happened to Jim when he became homeless was incredibly painful and he's had to fight to overcome his addictions. To begin with, my parents were very unhappy about our relationship. My father is a very successful businessman and I know he wanted me to marry someone with money. Still, they are slowly starting to accept my decision and now that they've met Jim a few times they can see that he is a good man.

We've had a lot of support from people who've seen our story in the papers, but we've also had a lot of negative comments too and we've both lost some friends. The media have also put a lot of pressure on us. I know Jim doesn't see it this way, but even now it still makes me angry the way the papers and the TV producers treat people. I just think back to that first story. Here was this completely broken man, living on the streets. They came along and did their story on him, and do you know what they gave him? Ten pounds and a cup of tea! That's it! And then they got back into their big cars and drove off, leaving him to go back to that awful hostel. They do these stories, but none of them really care about people. I can't forgive them for that.

Anyway, despite all that, we've managed to survive together. He's wonderful person, and I love him with all my heart.

No home. No job. No worries.

When he lost his flat, writer CJ Stone decided to 'go on the road'. How will he cope with life in the slow lane?

I didn't wake up one morning and say to myself, 'I think I'll go and live in a van.' It was more accidental than that. First of all I lost my flat and then, at the same time, I discovered I needed a new engine for my car. That meant that I would have to spend £ 1000 to get the car back on the road. I suddenly found that that I needed, first, somewhere to live and, second, something to travel around in.

I was trying to decide what to do when I saw the advertisement: 'Converted ambulance for sale, £ 1600'. So I rang the number in the ad and arranged to go and see it. It was love at first sight! I made my decision straight away. Two days later I was the proud owner of a two-litre Ford Transit converted into a camper van.

At first I was nervous. I wasn't sure I could handle it. Where would I park? How would I wash? What would I do in the evenings? I'm the sort of person who needs people around, but you can't give big parties in the van. And how would I cope anyway with life on the road? But I needn't have worried. Well, not much. It's a lot easier than I thought.

Parking can be most difficult. So far I've slept in several car parks and lay-bys, one or two festival sites and - once or twice - just by the roadsides. I haven't yet found the perfect place. I spend a lot of time poring over maps for ideal sites. I ask around among the travellers. And always believed I have a place in the world.

Since I started living in my van, I've had feelings I haven't experienced since I was a child. I suppose it's just the excitement of waking up in the morning, and, for the first few seconds, not knowing where you are. Then you look out the window, and some new sight greets scenery that makes your heart leap. Living in a flat in the city I missed all that.

One problem I've had is what to do about power for my computer. After all, I'm a writer. To start with I stayed on campsites that had electricity whenever I wanted to work. But it cost money and I couldn't concentrate because everyone else was on holiday and playing games right outside my windows. And then I found the solution: solar panels. That meant I could stay anywhere. Now I'm not only a travelling writer, I'm ecologically sound too.

Now I begin to appreciate what the travellers have been telling us all these years. Living in a van is cheap. No rent. No obligations. And on top of that there's the sense of freedom and the happiness that my new lifestyle has given me. Freedom can be addictive. I love being able to go where I want, when I want. It's wonderful to feel that the whole world is your home. No wonder so many people are living their houses and going on the road.

Interview with Fritzi

So, Fritzi, how did you get into collecting china elephants?

Well, it all goes back to when I was a kid. When I was about six or seven, one of my cousins gave me a small china elephant for my birthday, and I liked it so much I decided to start collecting them, so it all just started from there, really.

So, you've been collecting ever since?

Yeah, that's right. It's almost thirty years now. I know some people might think it's strange that I didn't grow out of it, but the more china elephants I bought, the more interested in them I got.

So, what is it that interests you about them?

I don't know, really. I like the fact that there are so many different kinds and I also the fact that some of them are so beautiful. Also, I just really like elephants. They are amazing animals. There's something very special about them. In some cultures, they're sacred. Actually, I think I might have been an elephant in one of my past lives!

And how many have you got now?

I've got five thousand. It's one of the biggest collections in our country, I think. I'm getting new ones all the time as well. I find them in second-hand shops, I buy them on the Internet and sometimes friends give me them as presents.

Where do you keep them all?

Well, I've got a special room in my house where I've got them all on display. I've got shelves and shelves of them! Actually, one day I'd like to open my own china elephant vuseum. I'm sure a lot of people would come and see it.

You also run a club, don't you? How did that start?

Well, back in the late 1980s, I just wanted to try to meet other collectors and find out more about the history of china elephants and about all the different kinds that exist around the world. I found out that there weren't really any books or catalogues on the subject, so I started my own club. It's just grown and grown and now there are about 125 members. We meet up from time to time and we swap elephants and things like that. It's great, and since we went online, collectors from over the world have got in touch with us, which is great.

Do you have a favourite one?

I do, actually. It's one of the oldest one in my collection. It's from 1897, and it's a big black one with really sad eyes. It's so beautiful, it makes me want to cry - but in a good way.

Travels across Africa

For six hours we shot through the barren landscape of the Karoo desert in South Africa, just rocks and sand and baking sun. Knowing our journey was ending, Daniel and I just wanted to remember all we had seen and done. He used a camera. I used words. I had already finished three notebooks and was into the fourth, a beautiful leather notebook I'd bought in a market in Mozambique.

Southern Africa was full of stories. And visions, we were almost drunk on sensations: the roaring of the water at Victoria Falls, the impossible silence of the Okavango Delta in Botswana. And then the other things: dogs in the streets, whole families in Soweto living in one room, a kilometer from clean water.

As we drove towards the setting sun, a quietness fell over us. The road was empty – we hadn't seen another car for hours. And as I drove, something caught my eye, something moving next to me. I glanced in the mirror of the car; I glanced sideways to the right, and that was when I saw them. Next to us, by the side of the road, thirty, forty wild horses were racing the car, a cloud of dust rising behind them – brown, muscular horses almost close enough to touch them, to smell their hot breath. I didn't know how long they had been there next to us.

I shouted to Dan: "Look!" but he was in a deep sleep, his camera lying useless by his feet. They raced the car for a few seconds, then disappeared far behind us, a memory of heroic forms in the red landscape. When Daniel woke up an hour later I told him what had happened. "Wild horses?" he said. "Why didn't you wake me up?" "I tried. But they were gone after a few seconds" "Are you sure you didn't dream it?" "You were the one who was sleeping!" "Typical," he said. The best photos are the ones we never take." We checked into a dusty hotel and slept the sleep of the dead.

Wild child

Today, Emma is a smiling, happy 19 year-old studying psychology at university. She has friends, a boyfriend and a busy social life. However, just many teenagers, her life wasn't always so easy when she was growing up.

Emma was brought up by her grandmother until she was 13. They were always very close and did everything together. Unfortunately, her grandmother was quite ill, and as she got older it became more difficult for her to look after her granddaughter. When she was thirteen Emma went to live with another relative, but she wasn't very happy. 'I was a wild child,' says Emma, 'and I know I was difficult to live with. I started smoking and drinking, and I kept missing school and getting into terrible fights. Nobody knew what to do with me, and I got into trouble with the police too.'

When she was 15, Emma's behaviour got worse. She stayed out at night, went to clubs, often got into trouble with the police and even started taking drugs. Finally, it was decided that Emma should go and live with a foster family for a while.

It was then that things began to get better for Emma. She moved in with her new family, and her foster mother, Caroline, who had fostered a lot of teenagers before. 'She was a real friend. She showed me that there was another way to live my life, and how important it was to go to school. She helped me to see that I could make a decision about what my life was going to be like.' Emma decided to stay on at school, and worked hard for her exams.

Emma was extremely lucky. When foster children reach the age of 18, they usually have to leave their foster homes. But Caroline wanted Emma to stay with them, and the local council agreed to pay for some of her expenses. 'It's good that young people can stay with their careers after they are 18,' says Caroline. 'It's very hard for them if they have to suddenly leave and live out in the world on their own'. Caroline says that her relationship with Emma has changed now that she is older. 'I have to treat her like an adult and give her space. She goes to university, so she comes home with a lot of new worries, but I always try and help her sort her problems out.'

Emma is very pleased with the changes in her life. 'I think university is great for any young person.' she says, 'I've been really lucky, I'm going to do something with my life, and it's all because of Caroline. But the best thing is that I feel part of real family. Of course, I will still see Caroline after I finish university and leave home - one day she's going to be granny to my kids.'

The smallest house in Great Britain

Conway - a small town on the north coast of Wales. There is much evidence of the past here.

Just look at the old walls surrounding the town, its twenty-two towers and three gates. The castle is a masterpiece of medieval architecture and is one of the most complete in Europe. But one of the biggest tourist attractions in Conway is small in size: it’s less than 3 metres high and 1,5 metres wide. It’s the Smallest House in Great Britain.

Now, if you take a closer look at it, you may start to wonder how it was possible to live in it. To find an answer we have to go inside. The cooking was done here – in this tiny fireplace. In this small kitchen, there is hardly any place to sit apart from the little round table. Even the water tap is hidden behind stairs. Let’s have a look at the bedroom now. Only a tiny bed, a small dressing table and a washbasin are there. It’s not very comfortable. Why don’t we have a look outside once more?

In the nineteenth century, the house was considered unusual, although it was a normal place to live. In 1900, the local authority decided to send representatives to check the condition of the house. When the inspectors came, the owner said to them, ‘I’m afraid I shall have to step outside so that there will be room for you inside.’ Eventually, the decision was taken to demolish the house. Fortunately, it was saved by the editor of the local newspaper who pointed out that this was the smallest house in the country. Now, it’s still here, with its red-painted front and its landlord dressed in traditional Welsh costume. It’s open to tourists from all over the world. Just remember – when you step in, don’t forget to lower your head!

So you think you have a difficult journey to work; traffic, heat and other people. You fight through crowds, down tunnels, up escalators. And you arrive at work sweaty and tired. However, it could be a lot worse.

Consider Tadao Masuda who lives in Japan. His journey to work takes three and a quarter hours and then another three and a quarter back home again. He gets up at 4.00 a.m. Although he knows the journey time to the minute, he leaves nothing to chance. He sets off at 4.55, gets the train at 5.16 and always arrives at the office on time. He finally returns home at 8.50 in the evening. He knows his routine well - after all, he has done it for 30 years.

I don't actually enjoy my commuting, but I definitely don't feel it is a waste of time. I use the time for my own thoughts. It is my private space. Despite many problems at work during the day, I've always forgotten them by the time I get home. It is my way of getting rid of stress.' Tadao is prepared to work hard. Despite not enjoying the journey, he does not complain about it.

Today at 65, he is considering a change. He would like to spend more time with his wife and family. In spite of staying with the same company all his life, he still only gets ten days off a year. However, will he be happy when he retires and ends his 30-year routine?

Hello, People of Thailand!

Whatever country we come from, whatever colour our skin is, we all have one thing in common: we are all people of the world.

Thailand is a beautiful country with a rich culture, just south of China. People call it "the jewel of south-east Asia" for a good reason. Its tropical climate, white sandy beaches and ancient temples make it a perfect holiday destination. What makes it really special, though, is its people.

Thai people are good-looking. They are short with delicate features. They have got black hair, dark eyes and light brown skin. The Thais are friendly people who are well known for being generous and kind. "We are happy people who have strong wills and are especially proud of our history," says Kasem from Bangkok.

Most people in Thailand live in villages. A typical Thai village consists of wooden houses, a school and a Buddhist temple. Most of the people in the villages are farmers and fishermen. The men usually work in the fields or catch fish in the rivers, and the women plant the crops.

Family life is very important in Thailand, and families often eat together. Thai food is very spicy and includes curries, fish, seafood, soups and noodles, "We eat rice with our meals and use a lot of strong spices in our cooking," explains Kasem.

Thai people love to enjoy themselves. Popular free-time activities include Thai boxing and watching traditional dance shows. Thais also celebrate many festivals throughout the year. "My favourite holiday is Surin, in November, when we always have elephant football matches," says Kasem.

Thailand is a wonderful country. Its fascinating sights, rich cultural history and warm-hearted people make it unique.

You buy a hat?

On our first day in Delhi we went to the Red Fort. A man just outside was selling floppy hats, wearing a huge pile of them on his head.

'Hello, friend. You buy hat?'

'How much?'

'Best price.'

'How much?'

'What you like.'

'What I like?'

'You give price.'

'How much are they normally?'

'You give price, friend. Any price - cheap price.'

'Um... 50 rupees.'

This seemed reasonable to me, but when I said it, he immediately put a hat on my head and waited for me to pay. I'd obviously offered too much, but I didn't really see how I could change my mind, so I gave him the cash.

Liz asked me what I had paid and laughed in my face. I said I didn't care, and thought it was a perfectly fair price for what I had got, because it was a very cool hat. 'Haven't you noticed that every other Westerner in the city is wearing one?'

I looked around to see if what she had said was true. A group of middle-aged Europeans came out of the fort. More than half of them were wearing my hat.

I wish I hadn't bought the hat now, but thanks to the argument I'd have to wear it all the time, just to show that she hadn't changed my mind.

Text 6Studying? Is it really worth it?

It's that time of year again - the national exam results are coming out today and young people all over the country are deciding what to next. Go to college? Get a job? So it's good time to ask: "How important is education if you want to be successful in life?"

A job for life?

A university education used to be the safest path - a job for life. Is it still true? Read Gavin's story.

'I always loved history but I didn't know what job I wanted. I worked hard at school, passed all my exams and went to university to study history. After continuing studying and becoming a university lecturer, I thought I had a good job and a safe career. Unfortunately, the university reduced the teaching staff. I was the most experienced lecturer, but also the most expensive so I had to leave. I'm 51 now. I want to re-train but it's harder for me than it is for younger people.

A lesson in life?

Carl's chosen route would appear to be the riskiest, but could it actually be the most successful in the modern world?

'I was the worst pupil in my school and left at 16. I tried a training course, but it was the most boring thing I ever did and I gave up after a week! I got a job in an electrical shop, and quickly learnt enough to become a manager. Through hard work, I made my way to the top and now I'm Managing Director of one of the biggest software companies in Europe. Who needs exams? Work is a much better way to learn than any courses!'
